2013–14 Academic-Year Internships

Call for Applications

The Princeton University Art Museum invites applications from Princeton University undergraduate and graduate students for our 2013–14 academic-year internship program. Interns work about 10 hours per week (not to exceed 20 hours per week) during each semester. Undergraduate students are paid $13 per hour and graduate students are paid $18 per hour.

Academic-year internship candidates apply to work on a specific project. Applicants for all projects should have strong research and writing skills and should have completed at least some coursework in art history or a related field. Please note that these positions are restricted to Princeton University students.

Projects for the 2013–14 academic year include:

American Art: Research objects in the collection and on campus for an envisioned public history project on Princeton and slavery.

European Art: A graduate student to assist with preparations for upcoming rotations in the galleries of 19th and early 20th-century European art. Graduate-level coursework in the art of this period is preferred.

Modern and Contemporary Art: Assist with research on new acquisitions and existing works in the collection; a January 2014 rotation in the galleries; and three exhibitions: Lee Bontecou's drawings; abstract painting by American and European artists between 1950 and 1990; and the connections between the work of Samuel Beckett and art of the 1950s-70s. Prior coursework in the area of Modern and/or Contemporary art is preferred.

Photography (two opportunities): 1) An undergraduate or graduate student to assist with research and preparations for the February 2014 photography rotation in the galleries. A familiarity with the history of photography is preferred. 2) A graduate student to conduct specialized research in support of a catalogue essay for an upcoming exhibition on photography and urban planning. Graduate-level coursework in the history of photography, urban architecture, urban planning, and/or postwar American art is preferred.

Applications must include: a cover letter describing the applicant's specific interest in the internship program and how their experience and expertise relate to the selected project; a C.V. or resumé; 2 letters of academic recommendation; and an official transcript. For more information about our internship program, please visit our website at artmuseum.princeton.edu/learn.

All applications must be received by Friday, June 28, 2012 at 5 p.m. Applicants are encouraged to submit materials electronically to PUAMint@princeton.edu or via mail to the Academic-Year Internship program, c/o The Princeton University Art Museum, Princeton, NJ 08544.

Academic-year internships are made possible in part by an endowment from the estate of Joseph F. McCrindle.
