Exploring the Urban Intersections of Education, Art, and Spirituality

Saturday, February 28th

The best safeguard against poverty has always been access to an education. Yet not all students in America have equal access to high quality instruction. Urban neighborhoods suffer from this most acutely.

Join us for the Knowledge, Beauty, and Faith Conference to explore how Education, Art, and Spirituality intersect to provide a thriving community of students in Newark's Inner City.

Meet the students of St. Benedicts Prep at a screening of "The Rule" with a Q&A with the film's directors and the school's headmaster.

Learn about the particular challenges facing Urban Education and how to change it directly from those on the front lines.

Hear from artists, including Tony Award Winner, Emily Mann about how to raise the public consciousness through Art.

Ponder the importance of a strong moral framework in academic success through interfaith dialogue.

The answers are out there. We don't want this to be just a Catholic conversation. We want this to be a campus-wide conversation. Join the conversation by registering today.

Register and see a full schedule and list of panelists at princeton-kbf.org.

Co-Sponsored by The Aquinas Institute and the Office of Religious Life at Princeton University.
